EXHIBIT A

10 C.F.R. Section 2.1019(i):

2.1019(i)(1) After receiving written notice of the deposition under paragraph (a) or paragraph (e) of this section, and ten days before the scheduled date of the deposition, the deponent shall submit an electronic index of all documents in his or her possession, relevant to the subject matter of the deposition, including the categories of documents set forth in paragraph (i)(2) of this section, to all parties and interested governmental participants. The index shall identify those records which have already been made available electronically. All documents that are not identical to documents already made available electronically, whether by reason of subsequent modification or by the addition of notations, shall be treated as separate documents.

(2) The following material is excluded from the initial requirements of § 2.1003 to be made available electronically, but is subject to derivative discovery under paragraph (i)(1) of this section— (i) Personal records; (ii) Travel vouchers; (iii) Speeches; (iv) Preliminary drafts; (v) Marginalia.

(5) Subject to paragraph (i)(6) of this section, a party or interested governmental participant may request that any or all documents on the index that have not already been provided electronically, and on which it intends to rely at hearing, be made electronically available by the deponent.

(6) The deposing party or interested governmental participant shall assume the responsibility for the obligations set forth in paragraphs (i)(1), (i)(3), (i)(4), and (i)(5) of this section when deposing someone other than a party or interested governmental participant.

Re: Docket No. 63-001

Dear Mr. Irwin,

I am attaching deposition notices for Kevin Coppersmith and Michael Gross, detailing depositions to be conducted, respectively, on June 28 and June 29, 2011, at the locations and times specified in the notices. They are being filed today.

During our “meet and confer” telephone calls over the past few weeks, we have indicated to you, and wish to reiterate, our view regarding proceeding with these and other depositions we have discussed. As you know, Nevada did not oppose your motion to temporarily stay this proceeding which you filed with the NRC licensing board (CAB) or the similar motion you filed with the NRC and continues to believe that the licensing proceeding, including discovery, should not go forward until the future of the Yucca Mountain program has been finally clarified in the courts and in Congress.

However, the CAB’s February 25th Order warning that discovery rights could be forfeited for failure to proceed leaves Nevada with little choice but to begin scheduling depositions, while incurring potentially large and unnecessary expenses in the process. We do so only reluctantly because Nevada cannot risk the waiver of its valuable discovery rights.

We continue to be willing to discuss alternate dates, or alternate times, or alternate locations, if the specified ones create a conflict for the witnesses. In addition, as was the case a year ago when depositions were planned, we are willing to discuss the matter of documents required to be produced by the witnesses, in an effort to avoid unduly burdening them.

Sincerely,

Martin G. Malsch
